

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

In embarking up a thesis which covers a period over 84 years (1835-1919) of Forest Settlement and allied problems in two districts of North Bengal (Darjeeling and Jalpaiguri), across almost an unknown tract I had every possibility to lose my way, but due to the support, assistance and encouragement from many quarters, I was able to come out of this pathless jungles; and it gives me great pleasure to acknowledge such assistance as this task stands completed.

I take this opportunity to express my deepest sense of gratitude to one of my supervisors Dr. Ananda Gopal Ghosh., Reader in the Department of History, University of North Bengal, under whose Kind supervision this thesis has taken the present form. He is always in search of new horizon, and inspired me to exploit this new field of work. Whenever I found myself in the labyrinth he acted as my path-finder. His constant supervision, guidance and inspiration through discussion encouraged and enriched me much to go ahead with this task. Also I gratefully remember my another supervisor Dr. Ratna Roy (Sanyal), Reader in the Department of History, University of North Bengal, who many a time supplied relevant current articles to me and encouraged me by her kind suggestions.

I owe a debt of gratitude to my teachers Prof. M.M. Mukhopadhyaya, Prof. J.Kar, Prof. T. K. Roy Choudhury, Prof. Mandira Bhattacharya, Prof. Chhanda Chakraborty and Dr. I Sarkar of the Department of History, University of North Bengal, and Prof. Ajit Neogi, Prof. Sukumar Bhattacharya and Dr. Sandip Bosu Sarvadhikari of the Department of History, Visva Bharati for encouraging me to complete the thesis.

I offer my grateful thanks to Dr. Shubhrangshu Barik of A.C. College, Jalpaiguri who was kind enough to take me to the local Forest Offices and introduced me there. I wish to place on record my sincere thanks to Shri Rakesh Sinha, IFS, C. F. Northern Circle, West Bengal who helped me with valuable documents. I am also thankful to Shri Bijan Choudhury of the Forest Department, Northern Circle, whom I gave troubles so many times without formal notice, but he ungrudgingly met my demands. I am also grateful to Shri Partha Basu of the said office. My thanks are also due to Shri Sourish Roy and Shri Sadhan Dasgupta of Divisional Forest Office, Jalpaiguri for their Co-operation. My thanks are due to MR. S. S. Bist, IFS, Conservator of Forests Hill Circle, Darjeeling and Mr. G. P. Chhetri, WBFS, Assistant Forest Officer, Darjeeling Forest Division for the facilities I received from them.

I am indebted to Mr. Ananda Bhattacharya of State Archives, West Bengal without whose assistance it would have been impossible on my part to see and collect primary source materials for my thesis. I gratefully acknowledge my debt to Mrs. Mousumi Banerjee of Sibnath Sastri College, Kolkata who taught me first lesson on Archives. For the collection of Primary source materials I am under obligation to Mr. Santi Sarkar, Library and Information Assistant, Senior Archivists Ms Jaya Ravindran and Mr. Prabal Dasgupta of National Archives of India, New Delhi, who have extended help whenever I asked for it. I am thankful to Shri Bishwajit Biswas who devoted valuable time in typing my dissertation with utmost sincerity.

I am also indebted to Mr. Santanu Talukdar who took the trouble of meeting my various demands, and helped and inspired me to complete the work in due time. I express my gratitude and indebtedness to those scholars from whose books and articles I have collected data and information.

I am thankful to my younger brother Aranya Chakraborty for his constant encouragement. Thanks are due to my wife, Nivedita Chakraborty for her self-denial. It will be injustice if I do not mention my parents who sacrificed much of their social lives on endless evenings when I was at my desk working on the thesis.

I was in a hurry to finish this thesis; I am conscious about its weaknesses. The errors in fact and in judgment are, of course, my own.
