

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

I would like to sincerely thank my Supervisor, Professor Sanchari Roy Mukherjee, Professor of Economics, University of North Bengal, whose unstinting support and valuable advice has helped me to finish my thesis in time. I also thank her for reposing faith in me and suggesting a topic as challenging as the one I have chosen for my research.

I am also grateful to Professor Jeta Sankrityayana with whom I have consulted at every step of my thesis. Without his valuable guidance this work of mine would not have seen the light of day. His suggestions and comments has helped me clear my ideas.

I would also like to acknowledge the Librarian and staffs of Forest Directorate Library, Aranya Bhavan, Kolkata, Central Library, University of North Bengal. I am also thankful to West Bengal Forest School Library, Dow Hill, Kurseong for making me available important forest documents and extending other resources required.

I also acknowledge the project support that I have received under the SAP DRS -II UGC Scheme, which supported me to finish my field survey.

I am also grateful to all of my colleagues in the Department of Economics, University of North Bengal and would especially like to mention the names of Professor Anil Bhuimali, and Professor Sudhakhina Ray who have constantly encouraged me to complete my work.

I would also like to thank my students who assisted me in my field survey, especially Shailesh Chettri for he went an extra mile to make sure that my work is finished well within time.

I would also like to thank Pratap Das for doing my printing and binding work at such short notice.

Last but not the least I would like to thank my family and friends who have stood by me through thick and thin and also constantly inspired me to complete my work. My wife Debjani has given me the extra support that I needed to finish my work. During all these days while I was busy finishing my work, the little time I could spend with my daughter Ishani was what I always looked forward to. Finally I would like to thank my parents – to whom I dedicate this thesis, for their untiring support and belief in me.
