

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

My interest in the subject has grown when I came into touch of my supervisor, Prof. Anil Bhuimali, Professor and Head, Department of Economics, University of North Bengal. I take the opportunity of expressing my heartfelt gratitude to Prof. Bhuimali, who guided the study and exercised efforts in getting the thesis completed. His encouraging guidance has always been a source of inspiration to me.

I convey my humble gratitude to Prof. Sekh Rahim Mondal, Centre for Himalayan Studies, University of North Bengal, for his suggestions and constant inspiration.

I accord my heartfelt thanks to Sri Paritosh Chakladar, Headmaster, Nanda Prasad High School (H.S), Naxalbari, for the help extended to me in conducting the survey work.

Let me offer my heartiest thanks to all the teachers of the department of economics, University of North Bengal, for their constant encouragement.

I express my deep sense of gratitude to my colleague Saunak Samajdar for his untiring help in bringing out the thesis. I am grateful to my colleague Kanti Paul for his indispensable help in doing computer work.

No formal thanks can compensate the sacrifice made by my wife Kohinur Begum who is deprived of my association. I am thankful for her constant striving to keep me away from all disturbances to the extent possible. I deeply feel for my daughters, Tanisha Yasmin and Zenifa Yasmin, as I fail to give them company.
