

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

My indebtedness to my revered supervisor, Prof. Manas DasGupta, former Head of Economics Department, (now retired) University of North Bengal, is without bounds. I express my deep sense of gratitude to the beloved teacher. I formally acknowledge my thanks and gratefulness to him. This dissertation would have never come to its logical end without his methodological, creative and scholarly guidance. I have been able to complete this thesis through his sustained interest in my work combined with love and affection. I submit my affection, respect and oblation. I also feel equally obliged and remain grateful to Mrs. DasGupta for her kindness, hospitality and affection.

I am indebted to Sri Ananda Pathak, Sri R.B.Rai, and Sri Madan Tamang, I am equally indebted to Late B.B. Lama and his family members from Soureni for their valuable guidance, advice and direction and made themselves available at times for my consultation with them. Also I should acknowledge the great help extended to me by my colleagues, Shyamal Guharoy, Jas Yonzon and Rajen Dhakal for finding and collecting some rear books I needed most.

My thanks are also due to Miss Bandana Mukhia of Darjeeling Planters' Association, Darjeeling for having supplied to me with some desired materials and valuable information.

I am thankful to Mr. P. Banerjee, Mr. Raja Banerjee of Makaibari Tea Estate for enabling me to obtain useful information from their records office. My thanks are also due to Proprietors, Managers of various tea gardens where I carried out my fieldwork for their valuable cooperation. I am also indebted to the various trade union leaders for providing me useful data I required.

I can never forget the assistance provided to me by the Indian Tea Association, Calcutta for permitting me to collect information from their respective departments

I express my sincere thanks to the Head, Department of Economics, N.B.U and other members of the Department. I am also thankful to the Librarian, and members of Library department. I also acknowledge my gratefulness to the Registrar, and other members of the Registrar's department.

I owe a special debt to the Principal, colleagues and the non-teaching staff of Kurseong College for their co-operation.

I can hardly afford to forget Shri Ashok Pradhan, Kurseong for his ever readiness to type out my manuscript without any delay in spite of his busy schedule. I owe him an immense debt of gratitude.

To my parents, brothers and other members of my family who always inspired and encouraged me, no formal thanks and appreciations are adequate. I owe them a lot.

Finally, there is a special kind of support that was crucial to the successful completion of the dissertation. My wife, Anu with her love and affection, has been always inspiring and encouraging me, remaining unbothered of the family members, looking after my daughter Preksha and son, Praju in my absence.

~~~~~*~~~~~