The principle objective of the present dissertation is to explore the concept of secularism from Indian context.

First of all, I thank Sri Rabindra Nath Roy, my maternal uncle who gave me the chance to educate myself when times were adverse and education was not a prominent aspect.

I thank Prof. Debika Saha, who is not only my guide but my philosopher truly, to encourage me to complete this work and who at times was more enthusiastic about my work than me.

I thank Dr.Nirmal Kumar Roy ( Head of the department), Prof Raghunath Ghosh, Prof Jyotish Chandra Basak, Prof, Kantilal Das, Dr. Kaushik Joarder, Dr. Anirban Mukherjee,Dr,L.K Padhi, Dr. N. Ramthing, Smt Swagata Ghosh, members of the faculty for their support and cooperation.

I thank my parents, Late Chandi Charan Roychowdhury and Smt. Basanti Roychowdhury, for bringing me into this world, who gave me the most precious gift one can give, my life and my existence.

I owe my special gratitude to Prof. Suboth Kr. Jash and Smt.Mandira Jash for making my stay comfortable during my research.

I thank Dr. Shanti Chhetri, Principal of P.D. Women's College, for permitting me to complete my work despite all odds and supporting me during this period.

I thank Mr. Phalguni Chowdhury, my husband, who is very supportive of my work.

I thank Harit Chowdhury, my son, who understood the significance of this work for me and in spite of his demanding studies, managed time to take care of me.

I would like to acknowledge with thanks the help given to me in North Bengal by the staffs of North Bengal University Library.

Last but not the least I thank Alakshya Indra Ghosh (Tun), who helped me to overcome the technical hurdles that I faced during compilation of my thesis. I owe my special thanks to Priyanka, Balaramda and Gautam for their cooperation. Thanks to Sujit for binding the type-scripts within a very short period. Despite the support of various people, many short comings may remain and for this I am alone responsible.
