

Acknowledgement

At the outset I would like to bow with reverence and all humility the Almighty for His countless gracious blessings showered upon me without whom this work would not have been seen the day light. Besides, the work is the kind contribution of some people without whose constant support and cooperation it would not have been possible for me to bring the work into final shape.

First and foremost I would like to acknowledge my deepest sense of gratitude to my supervisor, Dr. Sujit Kumar Biswas, Assistant Professor, Department of Law, University of North Bengal for sharing his cherished knowledge in completing the research work. He had infused in me the initial spark boosting my capabilities to undertake the work. Despite busy schedule, his patient, valuable guidance, enthusiastic encouragement and useful critiques helped me to complete the work successfully. It has been a great privilege to have done my research work under his careful guidance and assistance. I would remain grateful to him throughout my life.

A special debt of gratitude is owed to Prof. (Dr.) Gangotri Chakraborty, Department of Law, University of North Bengal, my teacher and mentor who has been an inspiration since my LL.B days and continues till this day in my academic journey in completing Ph. D. She has been generous in sharing her knowledge on various aspects specially in understanding the research methodology. I am grateful to her for her kind suggestion on my topic and for her guidance during the course work. Her invaluable guidance, assistance, understanding and insight in the subject helped me in completing my work successfully. The empirical research of my thesis work would not have been possible without her valuable advice, critical guidance. I am fortunate enough to have her as my teacher.

I would also like to extend my sincere thanks to Prof. (Dr.) Rathin Bandyopadhyaya, Department of Law, University of North Bengal, for his kind advice, inspiration that helped me immeasurably to complete this work. I owe a deep sense of gratitude to Late Prof. B. P. Dwivedi, his encouraging words gave me the confidence to complete the work successfully.

I am thankful to all the non-teaching staffs of the Department of Law, University of North Bengal and the library of the Department of Law, University of North Bengal for extending tremendous help in completing my work. Special mention should be made of Mr. Amal Kumar Dhar from law library of the department for his continuous support.

Deeply remembering my father Late P. M. Debnath for his tremendous support throughout who would have been the happiest person seeing me completing the task, my deepest love and gratitude to my mother Charubala Debnath for her never ending encouragement and blessings whenever I felt low. I am also grateful to my loving sister Shibani and my beloved son Arya who have been the source of energy throughout. I am also thankful to my manager, Baban for his mental support and encouragement.

Finally, a special heartfelt thanks to my wife, Sulekha Debnath for constantly encouraging and providing enduring support which helped me although to complete the research work.

Date:

Dipankar Debnath