

A C K N O W L E D G E M E N T S

It is difficult for me to find appropriate words to express my deep sense of gratitude to Dr. P. K. Ghose, formerly Vice-Chancellor, University of North Bengal and now Professor, Delhi School of Economics, Delhi, who took a keen interest in my research work. I also thank Prof. D. B. Patta, present Vice-Chancellor of this North Bengal University, for the interest he has shown in my work.

My intellectual and personal debt to Dr. N. DasGupta, my research supervisor, Professor, Department of Economics, University of North Bengal, is immense who provided continuous guidance and unfailing encouragement in writing this thesis. Without his patience and understanding, my dissertation might not have been finished.

I acknowledge, with gratitude and thanks the role played by my colleagues in the Department of Commerce Prof. Malipada Deb, Shri Lakshmi Chandra Sharma, Shri Jasimara Nath Chakravorty, Shri Satyabrata Bhattacharya, Shri Chandra Lalitopadhyay, Shri Ganesh Chandra Sarker, Dr. Malay Roy, Shri Swapan Mani Chowdhary and Shri Palas Manjan Sengupta, who not only provided constant encouragement in writing the thesis but also helped me a lot by discussing the subject.

I often discussed the subject with many eminent experts in the area and their timely comments and criticisms were of great help in the completion of my work. I am indebted to all of them.

I shall be failing in my duty if I do not record here the help received from Dr. A. K. Roy, Deputy Manager, National Bank for Agriculture and Rural Development, Calcutta, who incidentally aroused my deep interest in the subject of 'taxation'.

A number of other individuals like Dr. P. Chattopadhyay, Dr. A. K. Chowdhury of Department of Economics, University of North Bengal, Dr. B. Banerjee and Dr. J. B. Sarker of Department of Commerce and Business Studies, University of Calcutta and Shri T. P. Misra, North Bengal University Law College, contributed many constructive suggestions at various stages of this thesis. I am thankful to all of them.

It is with great pleasure that I also acknowledge all the debts to the librarian and other officers and staff of Central Library of this University of North Bengal. Without their sympathetic and active co-operation, which I received from them, it would have been difficult for me to complete this thesis. My heartfelt thanks to all of them.

Shri Jiten Sarker of Finance Branch, did a very good job of typing the complete draft of my work, figures were drawn by Shri Bhupes Bagchi of Controller's Branch and the necessary binding work was done by Shri Satyen Ghosh of the University Press of this University of North Bengal. My thanks to all of them.

Ramkrishna Mission, Calcutta Students' Home, gave me encouragement and substantial support throughout my educational career and my indebtedness to the 'Mission' is endless.
