

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I must acknowledge my indebtedness to supervisors of the dissertation. At the outset Professor A.K.Danda, formerly in the Department of Sociology and Social Anthropology, North Bengal University (NBU) encouraged and propelled me to undertake and pursue the study. His countenance, scrupulousness and lenient attitude really helped to overcome initial hurdles.

But when he had to leave NBU and join the Asiatic Society as Research Professor, (Mrs.) N. Chowdhury, Department of Sociology and Social Anthropology, North Bengal University, generously consented to be the supervisor. The ways she assented to be the supervisor, devoted valuable time to scrutiny the draft, conscientiously suggested improvement measures, all have not only been instrumental but also reparatory. Both of them deserve sincere appreciation for their benefaction and inspiring guidance.

I wish to record my humble gratitude to : Mr. Bijoy Behari Som, my colleague in the Department of Sociology and Social Anthropology, for indicating this topic of study and providing all the ground works; Mr. Tapan Das, now in DamDam Matizil College (Calcutta), for incessant inspiration even in time of distress ; Dr. Aswini Pal of Bidhan Chandra Krishi Viswabidyalaya, Cooch Behar Campus, for improving Interview Schedules ; Prof. D.J.Bhowmik, Department of Political Science, NBU, and Prof. R.S Mukherjee, Department of Sociology and Social Anthropology, NBU for their tips for relevant materials ; National Documentation Center, ICSSR (New Delhi), Institute of Social Studies Trust (New Delhi and Bangalore), Center for Women's Development Studies (New Delhi) and National Commission for Women for locating and arranging quite a large number of inaccessible documents ; Library staff of North Bengal University and Indian Council of Social Science Research, Eastern Region (Calcutta) for their helpful services ; Principal, Tufanganj Mahabidhyalaya for computer facilities and other encouragement ; staff of District Panchayat Office, Cooch Behar, for furnishing necessary district level information.

All the women and male respondents have essentially provided necessary inputs of the study. Also several Chairpersons of Panchayat bodies helped to locate and establish rapport with women respondents in particular. They also answered queries for my understanding of panchayat process. I am deeply obliged to all of them.

I wish to note my sincere thanks and compliment to University Grants Commission (Eastern Region) for its commendable approval of Minor Research Grant for the study.

Because of preoccupations with the study I compelled my family to put up with various strains. Manjima , my second mother, often demanded time to play with which I could not. I am grateful to my father, mother, wife and others for their patience and forbearance.

Date:

Amal Mandal