

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It gives me immense pleasure in expressing heartfelt thanks to my Supervisor, Prof. R.K. Bhadra, Head, Department of Sociology, University of North Bengal for giving me an opportunity to work under him, for his thoughtful remarks and insightful comments. Without his untiring co-operation, this dissertation would have not seen the light of the day. My sincere thanks is also due for Dr. Mita Bhadra for sharing her experience. Dr. (Mrs.) Indumati Rai's persuasion strengthen my desire for registration of Ph.D works and her all round support deserves special thanks. I express my heartfelt thanks to Shri Suresh Kumar Gurung, Principal, Damber Singh College who never failed to inspire me and extend all possible help whenever required. I am also obliged to Shankar and Pemgyal for their help during collection of data.

I am deeply indebted to Shri S. Lama, Ex-chairman, First State Finance Commission for guidance and providing the copy of the report of First State Finance Commission of Sikkim. My sincere thanks are due to Shri T.P. Dorjee and Shri T.P. Koirala, Chairman and Member, Second State Finance Commission respectively for their co-operation and valuable suggestions. My special thanks to Shri Tshering Khangsherpa, Joint-Secretary, all District Development Officers and their respective Sub-divisional Development Officers with special reference to Dinesh Bhutia, DDO(S) and Prabhakar Rai, SDDO(W) of Rural Management and Development Department. The Panchayat Inspectors, Rural Development Assistants, Village Level Workers and elected panchayat representatives of respective panchayat areas where research studies were carried left no stone unturned to help me on odd hours deserve my appreciation and sincere thanks.

I also put on record of thanks to the Principal, faculty and supporting staff of Damber Singh College, Harkamaya College of Education and Himalayan Pharmacy Institute for their co-operation, encouragement and support. I am also thankful to Tika for typewriting the manuscript on record time.

I am deeply indebted to officers of NBU who encouraged me and officials for their support.

Finally I owe a lot to my wife and children without whose understanding and support this work would have not been completed so early.
