

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The present thesis is the outcome of genuine involvement of people with whom I shall remain grateful forever. I would like to extend special thanks to my Ph.D. supervisor Prof. Jaydip Sen for his sincere involvement and advice which was crucial for the successful completion of this thesis. His supportive and understanding nature provided further ease in the thesis writing.

The people of Limboo community who participated in the present study really act as the backbone of the study. The people who facilitated my fieldwork with interest and benevolence are also acknowledged. I am thankful to my parents for believing in me and my work. My parents didn't give up on my dreams and showed all the patience during this time. They have been there encouraging and supporting me throughout. My younger sister Chandra Kadel, who carried out all the anthropometric measurements among female participants, was cardinal to the success of the thesis. I am also grateful for kind encouragement received from Dr. Samar Kumar Biswas and Dr. Pinak Tarafdar during the thesis writing process. Steady help received from Narayan Das and Sujit Kangha Banik will be remembered forever.

Further, I would gratefully acknowledge the help and cooperation of the Department of Anthropology, University of North Bengal. Financial assistance in the form of a UGC-NET Fellowship [(F.15-6(Dec., 2011)/2012(NET) dated 27.07.2012)], is also acknowledged.
