

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The completion of this thesis was possible only with the support and encouragement of numerous distinguished personalities. I would like to express my gratitude to all those who contributed in its completion and made it an unforgettable experience for me.

First and foremost, I would like to express my sincere gratitude to my research advisor Dr. Kanchan Datta, Associate Professor, Department of Economics, University of North Bengal for his continuous support, guidance, comments and enlightening suggestion regarding the content of this work. As my supervisor he has constantly encouraged and forced me to complete the job.

I would like to express my special gratitude and thanks to all the faculty members of Economics Department, NBU for their invaluable insights and suggestions to enrich my thesis. I am grateful to Dr Sanchari Ray Mukherjee, Professor of Economics, North Bengal University for inspiration in carrying out this work. My sincere gratitude is reserved for Dr. K.K Bagchi for his constant encouragement to complete the thesis.

I express my deepest sense of gratitude to my parents Hazi Sukur Ali Sheikh and Mrs Sabura Khatun, who have made me what today I am and to my wife Begum Anjumanara Khatun who have given continuous support throughout my research work.

I would like to express my gratitude to all the teachers who have taught me at school and college levels. My sincere thanks are also to all my friends, students and well-wishers for their good wish.
