

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am grateful to my thesis supervisor, Professor Sanchari Roy Mukherjee for accepting me as her scholar and for the guidance and support during the entire period of writing this thesis. I am thankful for her comments, suggestions and patient audience during preparation of this thesis. At the time of the registration, when I came to know that my allotted Supervisor would not be able to guide me due to some restriction imposed by the University as she was also doing her Ph.D. research, and, I was frantically searching a way out of this situation, Prof. Sanchari Roy Mukherjee rescued me and had given me the opportunity to work under her supervision, otherwise, the thesis would not have been completed. I feel, words are limited to explain my gratitude towards her.

I am thankful to Prof. Jeta Sankrityayana for advising me to work on the small borrowers.

I am thankful to Smt. Sudakshina Roy, Assistant Professor, Department of Economics, NBU for giving me the opportunity to work under her supervision as research scholar during the period of my Ph.D. course work classes.

I am thankful to all the teachers and employees of the Department of Economics, NBU for helping me during the days of my Ph.D. course work and research work.

I am thankful to Prof. Gangotri Chakraborty, Professor, Department of Law, University of North Bengal for encouraging me to join Ph.D. course at the time when I was overburdened with my family crisis and was frantically searching a way out, and, she suggested me to be involved in research work. Her parental guidance has given me the strength and determination to face the challenges without taking the constraint as its face value. She is always an inspiration for me.

I am thankful to all the faculty members and employees of Department of Botany, NBU for allowing me to join Ph.D. classes. Without their positive thoughts and help, it was not possible for me to complete the thesis.

For working on this thesis, I had to conduct a survey. While conducting survey, I had to face many troublesome situations, and, from there, I was rescued by Prof. Tapas Sarkar, Savadhipati, Siliguri Mahakuma Porishad. I would like to thank Prof. Sarkar and to all the staff members of Siliguri Mahakuma Porishad including the BDOs of these four blocks. Without their active role it was impossible for me to conduct the survey and to complete the thesis.

During my survey, I met and interviewed many persons in Matigara, Naxalbari, Khoribari, Phansidewa blocks and in wards of Siliguri. I am grateful to all of them for patiently answering my questions, some of which were also very personal in nature, but still they answered me about their monthly income, expenses, saving, assets, liabilities etc., though I was a stranger for them. I learnt a lot from them how to be open-minded and affectionate, even to a stranger. I thank all of them from the core of my heart.

I am thankful to my friends Dr. Shriparna Mukherjee for helping me in typing the thesis and to Mrs. Rakhi Sarkar who always encouraged me during the periods of thesis writing. I am also grateful to my other friends Biswanath Saha, Sanjoy Dey, Uttam Saha, Raju Dey, Bidyut Biswas and Goutam Das for their encouragement, suggestion and also for sparing me from our everyday's group adda (gathering and leg pulling) for a long period.

I would like to thank my son Writobrata Chatterjee who had to bear so many things during the days of the thesis writing for not having me with him all time.

My parents were / are my inspiration. They taught me the importance of becoming good human being than anything else. I feel that they would have been more happy if I could complete it before they left this world. This thesis is dedicated to my Parents.
