

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

There is a contribution of many individuals and institutions to fulfill my journey. I am grateful to all of my well-wishers who stood by me through various stages of my thesis writing. This thesis would not have been possible without the guidance and encouragement of my supervisor Prof. Maitrayee Choudhury. She supports me from the day one even when the idea of my topic was germinating in one of our discussion. Thank you so much for your faith on me.

I am thankful for the support extended to me from my college authority (governing body members, principal), my dear colleagues and students. My co-researchers/friends are also helped me greatly in many ways. I am very thankful to them for the nice time we have shared, your friendship and care at any time. Thank you Prof. Swatasidha Sarkar for your generous support, feedback of my work, especially the theoretical section. I am heart fully indebted to all the faculty members of the Centre of Himalayan Study for their motivation and encouragement to accomplished my thesis.

At field, I thank different administrative personnel (Department of Economics, Statistics, Monitoring and Evaluation, Labour Office, Gangtok, Sikkim) for being very supportive and understanding. Special thanks for Mr. Bhumi (Ward Councilor, Singtam), Mr. Raju (Field Officer NPO, Singtam) and other official personnel at Nagar Panchayat Office (Singtam). I am also grateful to Pinku Kumar Prasad (Ward Councilor, Rangpo), Ms. Renuka Mishra (Municipal Assistant) for the cooperation and help to collect my primary data base. I profoundly express my heartfelt gratitude to all my migrant respondents of Rangpo and Singtam towns. Their immense cooperation had helped me to complete this thesis. I am also willing to extend my gratitude towards all the local respondents for their faithful cooperation. Thank you Mr. Sourav Kundu for your all time guidance, patient advice during the use of Map-info and Arc-Gis software. Thank you Amlan K. Roy for your enduring suggestions and cooperation.

I am grateful to my family for always believing and supporting me. I want to thank my daughter, husband, mother, mother-in-law and siblings for their continuous support, love and faith to complete my thesis.
