It was a great pleasure to work in the six selected Rabha villages and interacting with the villagers. I owe them my profound gratitude for letting me into their personal lives and tolerating my presence. My special thanks to Mr. Upen Rabha and Mr. Rameswar Rabha of Rabhaline; Mr. Gobin Rabha of South Mendabari Forest Rabha village (Bong Basti); Mr. Phulen Rabha of Dhumchi; and many others of the various Rabha villages of northern part of West Bengal for furnishing me the necessary information for this study during field survey. I offer my sincere thanks particularly to Mr. Sushil Rabha, the famous academician and Rabha researcher who never disappointed me regarding fulfillment of my requirements. I am also thankful to the Rabha traditional healers and concerned modern medical practitioners for their co-operation during my field work.

I convey my sincere gratitude to the Department of Anthropology, University of North Bengal for the financial assistance and necessary infrastructural support throughout the complete tenure of the research.

Words fail me to express my sincere gratitude to my Supervisor Dr. Pinak Tarafdar, Professor, Department of Anthropology, University of North Bengal. He not only enriched my thesis with his academic excellence but also always guided me whenever I needed his assistance in the minutest detail of my work. His constant encouragement, patience and endurance kept my spirit glow during the entire study. I record again my sincere thanks to him for his genuine concern and guidance without which the thesis would not have been possible.

I am also grateful to my parents and other family members, friends, co-research scholars of the Department for their patience and continuous support right from the initiation of the work to till date with full encouragement.

The omission and commissions in the text are all my own.
