

Acknowledgement

I would like to express my affectionate and deeply felt gratitude to my supervisor Dr. Ajit Kumar Ray, Department of Commerce, University of North Bengal, for his valuable guidance, suggestions, supervision and critical comments at all stages of my work. It is his generous encouragement, inspiration and interest that helped me a lot to continue and finish my present research work. In spite of heavy pressure of work and pre-occupation he always spent his precious time in going through most of the present thesis. Indeed I am fortunate enough in having him as my supervisor. I owe the greatest debt to him.

It is a matter of immense pleasure to acknowledge the hospitality and moral support received by me from Dr. (Mrs.) Saswati Biswas, Department of sociology, NBU. She has also been kind enough to go through and comment on the draft form of a few chapter of my thesis.

I am grateful to faculty members of Department of Commerce, University of North Bengal for their kind cooperation in many ways. More particularly, the valuable help from Dr. M. K. Roy, Dr. I. Roy and H. Roy of department of commerce have immensely benefited me. I am thankful to all of them. Moreover, I would never forget all sorts of co-operation extended to me by Mr. Himangshu Ghosh, Record Assistant, Department of Commerce, NBU.

I consider myself fortunate enough to have constant discussion and association with a group of teachers of different department of NBU who have been a constant source of inspiration to me and they have also made my staying in India comfortable and studies enjoyable in many respect. In this regard I would like to express my gratitude to Dr. P.K. Mandal of department of Physics, Dr. P. Bandopadhyaya of Chemistry. Further, I am willing to record, high sense of appreciation for suggestion on my works to Prof. M. Dasgupta, Dr. C. Mukherjee and Dr. J. Sankrityayan, department of economics, University of North Bengal.

I also wish to record my debt and gratitude to my teacher, Professor Dr. Abdul Hye, who read my first version of interview schedule and gave me valuable advice. I received help, cooperation and inspiration from Professors A. J. M. Nuruddin Chowdhury, Dr. Jahirul Haque, Dr. Kazi Ahmed Nabi, Dr. M. Loqman, Mr. Harun-Ar-Rashid, Dr. A. N. M. A. Moqtadir and Dr. Syed, M, Ather, Mr. Golam Mohiuddin, Dr. Santi Ranjan Das and Begun Ismat Ara Haq of University of Chittagong. I am thankful to all of them I express my gratefulness to all of my friends in Bangladesh particularly Mr. Saiful Islam ( Bangladesh Bank) and Mr. Samsul Karim Samim. All of my friends and scholars from Bangladesh in University of North Bengal sacrificed lot for me. I am thankful to all of them.

I should like to express grateful acknowledgement to those writers whose contributions are recognised in notes and texts of the thesis, which follow. I should also like to make explicit my special debt to Victor Ukpolo, Professor of economics,

California State University, Los Angeles, for sending me two of his valuable research papers.

I owe my indebtedness to the authorities of libraries of Bangladesh Bank, Bangladesh Institute of Development studies (BIDS), Bangladesh Institute of Bank Management (BIBM), University of Dhaka, University of Rajshahi, IIM Calcutta, ISI Calcutta, Jadavpur University, and ICSSR to allow me to use their library.

I express my thanks to the Exports Firms, Commercial Banks, Sadharan Bima Corporation, Export Promotion Bureau, who were kind enough to allow me the interview and also extended their fullest cooperation. More particularly I am grateful to Mr. Pijush Kanti Sha of Agrani Bank and Mr. Ponu Ranjan Das of Janata Bank for their special kind of cooperation.

I am grateful to the Government of Bangladesh and Chittagong University for granting me leaves for my study in India and to the Government of India as well as University of North Bengal for giving me permission to conduct the research in India.

Expressing only thanks and gratefulness to my wife Rahela Akter (Moni), will not enough to compensate her silence and forbearance for my research work in India. Moni had face all the troubles and hazards created due to my absence. I am grateful to my mother in law, Mrs Nurun Nahar, for taking care of my wife and son during my study period in India.

I admit that any theory on measurement of deprivation would not ever be able to account for the extent of my son Irfan (Manan) has deprived of getting his father's association at the struggling phase of learning to walk, of acquiring new word and of producing first sound in his life.

Last of all I want to express my deepest regards towards my mother who have always encourage me for higher education and without her sacrifice I could not come to this stage.

(Md. Nesarul Karim)

Assistant Professor
Department of Finance
University of Chittagong