

Table of Contents

	Page
Preface	i - iii
Introduction	1 - 15

Chapter I

RELIGION IN MODERN MIND — SOME ANTIRELIGIOUS VIEWS OF MODERN AGE — AN ANALYSIS OF THE ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS IN RELIGION.	16 - 36
---	---------

Section I : An Examination of some anti religious views — Naturalistic atheism, Agnosticism, Scepticism, Humanism and Authoritarianism.

Section II : What is Religion — A process of Soul's growth — Way to be united with the Infinite — Remaking of man — Living experience of Truth — Not theory but practice in life — Which strengthens the foundation of morality — Meaning of religion as realised by Ramakrishna.

Chapter II

HISTORICAL DEVELOPMENT OF RELIGION. PRIMITIVE TO UNIVERSAL RELIGION — UNIVERSAL RELIGION, A NEW HUMANISTIC APPROACH.

37 - 82

Section I : Primitive, national and Universal religion.

Primitive religion as a rudimentary form of universal religion — Feeling of Love, Idea of Sacredness, the concept of the Infinite and the Spiritualistic notion of Universal Religion have been developed from Primitive religious cult.

National Religion, a hyphen between Primitive and Universal religion — Polydaemonism changes into polytheism — Religion gains ethical character — God-man relationship begins — Moralization of Gods and approach to monotheism — National religious concept grows into universal religion — Attention was shifted to internal states of consciousness — A new form of God-man relationship — Transition from material to spiritual world — Galloway on Universal religion — Criticism of Galloway — Religion in true sense is one and universal.

Section II : Main features of Humanistic Religion as realised by Scientific modern mind.

Necessity of a new religion — Predicament — Because of science — Failure of Traditional religion — New religion, its basic features — Quest of value, Idea of sacredness, Intuition as a fundamental source, Mysticism, No conflict with science — A picture of this type of religion in Ramakrishna's philosophy.

Chapter III

INDIAN CONCEPT OF UNIVERSAL RELIGION. THE UPANISHADS AND HUMANISTIC RELIGION. BACKGROUND OF UNIVERSAL RELIGION OF RAMAKRISHNA PARAMAHANSA.

83 - 124

Section I : Germs of Universal Religion in Hinduism — Basic features of Hinduism, Dynamic, Assimilative, Tolerant and Catholic — A synthesis of Philosophy and religion — Heart of Hinduism in the Upanishadic Philosophy.

Section II : Germs of Universal Religion in the Upanishads.

Relation of Philosophy and religion from Indian view point — knowledge as the source of religious experience and philosophy is a way of life, a vision of ultimate Truth — Indian philosophy, a humanistic and a spiritualistic approach. — Elements of Universal Religion in the Upanishads — The religious philosophy of Ramakrishna is the glorious expression of the Upanishadic thought.

Section III : Decadence — Renaissance — Brahma Samaj as the background of universal religion — Reinterpretation of Hinduism by Ramakrishna — Ramakrishna appeared in a dark age of India — Threefold reactions on the Indian mind — Role of Rammohun Roy, Devendranath Tagore and Keshab Sen as the reformers — The essential features of universal religion developed from the principles of Brahma Samaj — Prevention of Idol worship — Meditation on one Nirguna Brahman was practised — Conflict arose between the orthodox thinkers and the Brahmos — Appearance of Ramakrishna at this juncture — Hinduism reinterpreted by him in a new way — A new chapter of religion begins with Ramakrishna-Vivekananda movement — Theoretical exposition of Vedanta became lived.

Chapter IV

RELIGIOUS PHILOSOPHY OF SRI RAMAKRISHNA IN THE LIGHT OF CLASSICAL VEDANTA.

125 - 195

Ground of religious consciousness of Ramakrishna — His conviction of knowledge of Brahman — Direct realisation, the basis of his living representation of Truth.

Similarity and dissimilarity of Ramakrishna with both Saṅkara and Rāmānuja regarding the nature of Brahman, relation between God and the world, māyāvāda, will of God, method of approaching Reality, relation between jivatma and paramatma, concept of liberation, concept of Ego, concept of jivanmukti, Freedom of will, concept of upāsana, condition for the reflection of Truth.

Chapter V

A NEW APPROACH AND ITS DEFLECTION FROM THE CLASSICAL VEDANTA.

196 - 253

Section I : The concept of God — Introductory remarks about the concept of God — The philosophical problems concerning the concept of God — Reconciliation of God and Absolute in Ramakrishna's philosophy — A combination of Absolutism and Theism — God the Absolute Truth, the meaning and essence of everything — Both transcendent to and immanent in the world — The all inclusive totality — The centre of all — The highest reality as well as the supreme value — Both Impersonal and Personal — Active and passive — with form and without form — Reality expresses in alternative forms — Harmonisation of monism and monotheism — Ramakrishna's originality in the interpretation of relation of Brahman and the world, Brahman and jiva — His unique realisation of oneness of Reality — A new interpretation of cosmic energy.

Section II : Relation between God and Man — Both personal and impersonal relation — God the inherent essential principle of man — A humanistic approach based on the principle that 'jiva is shiva' — A light upon Karma Yoga — Asceticism converted to service — Problem of adhikāri.

Chapter VI

RAMAKRISHNA'S EXPERIENCES IN DIFFERENT RELIGIOUS PRACTICES.

254 - 313

Experiment on Tantra — Tantra based on philosophico-religious ideas and practices — Its esoteric aspect — No belief in accosmism — Concept of Siva and Sakti in Tantra — Aims not in abrupt renunciation — Sublimation of desires to the higher level of spiritual consciousness — The significance of the enjoyment of five forbidden things — Certain steps for practice of Tantra — Practice for awakening Kundalini Sakti — Kinds of Tantrik aspirants — Tantra practised by Ramakrishna in a free way — Unique realisations during his practice of Tantra — Effect of universalism of Tantrik cult on Ramakrishna — Experiment on Vaishnavism — A religion of love and devotion — Development of Vaishnava schools — Five Vaishnava sects with their specific features — worship of God in different attitudes — Experiment of vātsalya bhāva and Madhura bhāva — The way of Bhakti is equally valid like other ways of knowledge and action — Ramakrishna's concept of Bhakti was that of Nāradiya type — Ramakrishna's experiment on Vedantic discipline — Experiments on Islam and Christianity — Oneness of religion has been proved — Religious tolerance of Ramakrishna — Religions are not contradictory but supplementary.

Chapter VII

UNIVERSAL RELIGION OF RAMAKRISHNA. PARAMAHANSA. 314 - 354

The features of universal religion are present in Ramakrishna's thought — Idealistic view of man — Spiritual hunger in man — Concept of God as the universal spirit underlying all — Religion meant as self-realisation in a gradual process of evolution — Ramakrishna's approach approves religion as dynamic, value centric, a process of self-discovery and concept of universal salvation — Equal regard to all religions — Fundamentally religion is one and universal — Mysticism in Ramakrishna's Philosophy proves the approach universal — Religion as living experience — Blending of secular and sacred — No place of asceticism — Co-presence of renunciation and service — Universal Brotherhood based on the principle of 'Sameness to all' — Blending of the four elements of consciousness — cognitive, affective, conative and mystic.

x Conclusion	355 - 369
Bibliography	370 - 397