

A C K N O W L E D G E M E N T

I am much indebted to my supervisor, Professor S.P. Sen Gupta, former Senior Professor and Head of the Department of English, North Bengal University for his guidance and encouragement at every step during my research. I also express my indebtedness to Professor S.K. Das, of the Bengali Section in the Department of Modern Indian Languages, Delhi University and to Professor Naresh Guha, former Head of the Department of Comparative Literature, Jadavpur University for giving me valuable suggestions on comparative literature and its methodology. I would also like to express my gratitude to Professor Iswor Baral, Department of Political Science, Jawaharlal Nehru University (Delhi) for guiding me in the sources, and the impact of various poets on Laxmi Prasad Devkota's poetry. I express my thankfulness to the librarians and their associates of the North Bengal University Library, Delhi University Library, Sahitya Akademi Library (Delhi), National Library (Calcutta), Departmental Library of Comparative Literature, Jadavpur University, Padma Kanya Campus Library (Kathmandu), Tribhuvan University Library (Kathmandu) for providing me facilities for using their resources. Dr. R.K. Sprigg's painstaking proof reading and Mr. D. Khaling's help in getting Nepali portion typed in time have been of much use in preparing the thesis.

The project was financed by the Career Development Programme, Tribhuvan University, to which I express my deep gratitude.
