

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It is customary to put on record the help and assistance extended from time to time from various sources. In my case, I feel it obligatory to acknowledge in writing the assistance I received from various sources in preparing the dissertation because without such help and assistance it would have been hardly possible to get the present form of the dissertation. At the outset, I feel proud of expressing my deep sense of gratitude to my supervisors Prof. B. Bhattacharyya, Professor, Department of Geography and Applied Geography, University of North Bengal, and Dr. S. K. Chaube, former Director and Professor, Centre For Himalayan Studies, University of North Bengal and at present Professor in the Department of Political Science, University of Delhi, for their guidance in shaping my research imagination and constant help and inspiration in every step of the preparation of the thesis even inspite of their busy engagements otherwise. Their constant encouragement, academic discussion and valuable advice and suggestion helped me overcome the initial hurdles that I was confronted with my research problems. It was their sustained pressure combined with love and affections that gave me the rare incentive and momentum to carry on and complete this work with the help of their creative mind as well as critical and constructive outlook. The present dissertation thus was much to these ideal teachers, trusted philosophers and creative mentors in the way of its successful completion.

I cannot afford to fail to put on record my indebtedness to Dr. R. R. Dhamala, Reader, Centre for Himalayan Studies, University of North Bengal for extending her wide knowledge and expertise in the field which enriched my knowledge over the region and came as a conducive boost in course of my field investigation. I feel equally privileged to acknowledge my indebtedness to Dr. B. P. Misra, Professor, Centre for Himalayan Studies, Dr. T. B. Subba, Lecturer, Cenire for Himalayan Studies, and Mr. Md. Yasin, Lecturer, Department of Political Science, University of North Bengal for their valued suggestion and advice they kindly extended throughout the preparation of the dissertation.

I would also like to record my indebtedness to Mr. P. B. Chakraborty, Mr. K. S. Steffen, Mrs I. Dhamala, Mr. B. K. Century, Mr. S. Pradhan, P. Das and K. Dasgupta for their sincere interest and assistance that they rendered in conducting the field survey. Thanks are also due to all the staff members of the Census Unit, Sikkim; Agriculture, Survey and Settlement, Bazar, Transport, Education and Health Departments of the Govt. of Sikkim; Geological Survey of India, Gangtok Unit, and the local people including the business men of Sikkim for their help and cooperation.

No thanks are too high for Dr. Pradip Mandal and Mr. Ajit Roy of North Bengal University for their valued service in processing the data and getting them in readily -accessible tables and graphs. Thanks are also due to Mr. Aniruddha Sengupta, Mrs. Sumalika Dey, Mrs Arati Das and Miss Prasasti Ghosh for their sincere and patient assistance in working out the map and other cartographical works.

I extend my thanks to the Librarian and the staff members of the National Library and Asiatic Society Library, Calcutta, Indian Institute of Public Administration, Sapru House and National Archives, Delhi, Sikkim Institute of Tibetology Library, Gangtok and the Central Library, University of North Bengal for making available the needed materials with promptness and care. I also put on record my gratitude to Mr. J. M. Majumder, Documentation Officer, Centre for Himalayan Studies, University of North Bengal for technical advice in working out the bibliography and reference works of the dissertation.

I do not want to miss the opportunity to extend my gratitude to Dr. Likhenswar Ghatwoar, Dr. Gautom Biswas, Dr. Saswati Biswas, Dr. Samir Sarkar and Dr. Biswanath Ghosh of North Bengal University for their constant inspiration to complete my research work.
