

Acknowledgement

It is an imperative on the part of a student of Ph.D. to present a thesis. At the outset, I am most indebted to my supervisor, Prof. Manas Chakraborty, Department of Political Science, University of North Bengal, who took a keen interest in the subject and provided me with valuable suggestions which helped me to complete this work.

I must acknowledge my indebtedness to all teachers of the Department of Political Science, University of North Bengal without the help of whom, perhaps, the thesis might not see the light of the day.

I also thank all of my friends whose love, mental support and heartiest co-operation enabled me to fulfill my work.

I am very much obliged to the North Bengal University Central Library for earnest co-operation in collecting materials.

Finally, my sincere gratitude goes to my parents whose blessings and affection has enabled me to reach this stage of life. I also thank my sisters, brother and all of my family members for their constant support to me. I dedicate this thesis to them.
