

Acknowledgement

The completion of the present study made me obliged to number of persons, without whose liberal and generous assistance, the work would not have been complete. At the outset, I must acknowledge that no words of gratitude and appreciation would be adequate enough for the untiring endeavour and enthusiastic cooperation of my supervisor Dr. Sanjay Roy, Reader, Department of Sociology and Social Anthropology, University of North Bengal, whose initial impetus made me to undertake and venture at the present study. His valuable suggestions, constructive criticism and meticulous supervision have moulded the study to the present shape. I am also indebted to my revered teacher Prof. R. S. Mukhopadhyay, Department of Sociology and Social Anthropology for his constant inspiration and encouragement.

I remember with gratitude the number of officials and persons in Sikkim, who inspired and helped me at different stages of the study. Among them Mr. Ugen Shipmo, Mr. Pradeep Yonzon, Mr. Karma Loday Lepcha, Mr. Yong Norbu Bhutia, Mr. Chewan Dhakal, Mr. A. K. Thapa, Mr. Anil Raj Rai, Mr. Ajay Rai, Mr. Durga Thulung, Mr. D. B. Chhetri, Mrs. Monika Chhetri, Miss. Manju Sharma, Mr. H. B. Chhetri and my brothers Anand Thapa, Bejoy Thapa and Sanjay Thapa deserve special mention. I must express my thankfulness and indebtedness to all of them.

The inhabitants of Lingmoo and Yangang villages treated me as their guest and extended their full cooperation. I will always carry with me the fond memories of their kindness with a feeling of deep gratitude. Mr. Lakpa Lepcha, Mr. Palden Bhutia deserve my special appreciation for helping me in the micro-level studies on Lepchas and Bhutias. I owe a special thanks to Mr. G.N. Bhutia for writing the manuscripts meticulously.

I warmly acknowledge my thanks to Ms. Mamta Lama for bearing all kinds of inconvenience during my stay in Women Research Scholars' Hostel, North Bengal University and standing beside me with her inspiration and moral support all the time. Didi Sandhya Basnet is lovingly remembered for her warmth and constant inspiration. Ms. Mitali Majumdar, Ms. Sushma Tamang, Ms. Rashmi Rai, Dr. Anand Kharka and my friends Dr. Radha Sharma and Mrs. Maitrideepa Roy – all deserve my appreciation for their inspiration and encouragement.

The cooperation of my parents and my sisters Meena Thapa and Mamta Thapa cannot be ignored. They always stood behind me with a helping hand to carry out the work against all odds.

My thanks are also due to Mr. Mridul Goswami, who typed my thesis ungrudgingly and bore with my terrible scrawl. Mrs. Goswami is also equally remembered for her warm hospitality.

Last, but not the least, I remember Mr. S.C. Khatri with a feeling of gratitude. Perhaps, without his unceasing inspiration and moral support, I would have left this Project long time back.

Dated: 25.02.2002.

(Sandhya Thapa)