

*They form in cubes, rectangles, tetrahedrons
They may have their own peculiar axes and molecular arrangements
But they, like life, like men are twisted by the places into which they come*

Loren Eiseley, Notes of an Alchemist.