

Acknowledgements

I would like to acknowledge my thankfulness to the authorities of North Bengal University for their kind permission to work on this thesis in the University Department of Economics.

Individual acknowledgement of my intellectual indebtedness to various authors who have made a wholesome contribution to the development of growth economics and fiscal policy in developing economies is difficult. Their books are listed in Bibliography.

I am greatly indebted to my supervisors (i) Prof. Alak Ghosh, Former University Professor and head, Department of Economics, Calcutta University, President, International Institute for Development Studies (IIDS) and (ii) Prof. Jagadish Chandra Debnath, Ex-Dean of the Faculty of Arts, Commerce and Law, Professor of Economics, North Bengal University, for their most valuable advice, suggestions and guidance at all stages in the preparation of the thesis.

The thesis is dedicated to my mother who has always inspired me since my childhood about the value of knowledge. My special indebtedness goes to my wife who has made silent sacrifices and has encouraged me to strive for hard work and high goals.

I acknowledge my thankfulness to the Librarians of British Council Library and American Centre, Calcutta without whose help this work would not have been possible

My personal thanks always goes specially to Shri Ashis Kumar Majumder for his secretarial assistance.

Department of Economics
North Bengal University

Dated : June 21, 2001.

Dhanraj Kumar Agarwal
(D. R. AGARWAL)