

CONTENTS

	Page
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	iii
INTRODUCTION	1
CHAPTER ONE : THE DEVELOPMENT OF SOCIAL SCIENTIFIC THOUGHT AND A SUBJECTIVIST-OBJECTIVIST CLEAVAGE
The development of social scientific thought	11
Socio-political thinking of early Greeks	12
The impact of the Enlightenment	14
Montesquieu	16
Jean-Jacques Rosseau	19
The origin of positivist thinking by Saint-Simon	21
Auguste Comte	25
E'mile Durkheim	29
Max Weber	33
The subjective-interactionist trend in Social sciences	37
Charles Horton Cooley	39
George Herbert Mead	41
CHAPTER TWO : ORIENTATION TO PHENOMENOLOGICAL APPROACH IN SOCIAL SCIENCES WITH REFERENCE TO EDMUND HUSSERL
Orientation to phenomenological approach	47
Husserl's significance for the methodology of social sciences	49
Husserl's attempt to establish inter-subjectivity	52
Husserl's notion of the Life-world as the foundation of sciences	62
Husserl's idea of 'personal attitude'	73

	Page
CHAPTER THREE : APPLICATION OF PHENOMENOLOGY TO SOCIAL LIFE AND SOCIAL SCIENCES
Alfred Schutz and phenomenological sociology	90
Schutz's analysis of various social relations	93
The model construction in social sciences	100
Development of ethnomethodology by Harold Garfinkel and views of some other phenom- ological thinkers	112
Maurice Merleau-Ponty's phenomenology based on primacy of perception	124
 CHAPTER FOUR : REVIEW AND RETHINKING ON HUSSERL, SCHUTZ, MERLEAU-PONTY and OTHERS
Some critical observations on Husserl's transcendental phenomenology	135
A critique of Schutz, Garfinkel and the sociologists of knowledge	151
Is there any relevance of Merleau-Ponty	163
 CHAPTER FIVE : HERMENEUTICS AS ALTERNATIVE APPROACH TO SOCIAL UNDERSTANDING
The origin and development of the hermeneutic tradition	170
Gadamer's hermeneutics of historical under- standing	177
Habermas and the critical theory	198
Some critical observations	208

