

Acknowledgement

Working on this research project has been a wonderful and an unforgettable experience for me. At the end of my thesis it is a pleasant task to express my gratitude to all those who contributed in many ways to the successful completion of this intellectual adventure.

My greatest indebtedness must go to my supervisor, Dr. (Mrs.) Bhaswati Bhattacharya Chakrabarti, Rtd. Professor of Philosophy, University of North Bengal, for her continuous support, motivation and enthusiasm. She has guided me to walk on the right track with her patience and immense knowledge. Without her active guidance it would not have been possible for me to materialise this thesis.

My sincere gratitude is due to Dr. Raghunath Ghosh, Professor of Philosophy, University of North Bengal, for his valuable advice and encouragement. I also would like to sincerely thank the teaching faculties of the Department of Philosophy, University of North Bengal, for their distinguished helping nature that I have received during the whole tenure of my research project.

I am highly indebted to Dr. Dharani Kanta Das, Librarian, Bhola Nath College, Dhubri (Assam), for his unconditional help as and when sought for and his valuable suggestions and encouragement to accomplish this thesis.

I am deeply grateful to Nath (Yogi) Guru Sri Sri Swami Kaivalya Nath for his blessings on me and valuable advice at the time of preparing this dissertation. Spiritual conversations with him helped me a lot in finding out some solutions of the problems incorporated in this thesis.

I express my obeisance with gratitude to my respected teacher P.K. Khataniar, Cotton College, Guwahati for his help and encouragement.

I take this opportunity to sincerely convey my thanks to Dr. Hillol Kr. Chakrabarti, Rtd. Professor of Economics, University of North Bengal, for his inspiring advice and moral support.

I sincerely acknowledge the Officials and the Librarian of the University Library, University of North Bengal, for their generous assistance whenever I asked for. I also owe a lot to the Officials of the Departmental Library of Philosophy, University of North Bengal, for their liberal help and assistance.

My warm appreciation goes to the Librarians and Officials of the University Library, Gauhati University; Library of Bhola Nath College, Dhubri; Library of Christian Missionary School, Bashbari, Dhubri for their generosity by allowing me to use their resources for this research purpose.

I would like to express my heartfelt thanks and regards for the members of my in-laws family and my other relatives for their best wishes, encouragement and unconditional support to accomplish this humble work. My special thank is due to my beloved younger brother Bappi for his loving support.

I am ever grateful to the most important person in my life— my husband Dr. Sanjay Kr. Nath, Ophthalmologist, R.N.B. Civil Hospital, Gossaigaon (Assam). He has been a constant source of strength and inspiration for me. Words fail me to express my appreciation towards him for his judicious help and companion in this intellectual adventure through many wearisome hours, which made a major contribution in the preparation of the thesis.

Last but not least, I would like to express my sincere acknowledgement to all the people who directly or indirectly, knowingly or unknowingly has helped and inspired me to undertake and accomplish this noble task.

Finally, I would like to dedicate this humble work to my parents Sri Jadabananda Nath and Mrs. Minati Nath for their undying support and encouragement and uplifting me to this phase of life. I owe everything to them.

Debajani Nath
(Debajani Nath)
Date: 17.01.13.