I beg to acknowledge my sincere, humble and most respectful gratitude to my revered teacher, supervisor and guide Dr. Manas Dasgupta, Professor, Department of Economics, University of North Bengal. His valuable guidance and untiring efforts inspired me very much at all stages of the research work. He spared his extremely limited but valuable time in the various thoughts, additions and subtractions connected with the development and completion of the project. Even he often sacrificed his extremely limited but valuable leisure time for this purpose.

However, I think that no word of gratitude is sufficient to appreciate the guidance and encouragement I have received from time to time from my revered teacher.

I do also acknowledge my respectful and sincere gratitude to Mrs. Dasgupta, wife of Dr. Dasgupta, for her continuous tolerance, co-operation and support for the thesis.

I express my sincere and respectful gratitude to Dr. K.N. Chatterjee, Honourable Vice-Chancellor, University of North Bengal and Dr. I.K. Chatterjee, Honourable Registrar, University of North Bengal for their active help and support in various ways.

I am extremely grateful to the University Grants Commission for her financial assistance for the support of the Research-Project.

I am also indebted to Sri S.N. Roy, Principal, Raiganj College (University College) for his co-operation and support for the performance of the research work.

I acknowledge my sincere gratitude to the teaching staff of the Dept. of Economics, University of North Bengal and my colleagues of Raiganj College (University College) for their encouragement and support for the research work.

I am grateful to those people who helped me in the collection of data. Special mention in this regard may be made about the persons serving in District Agricultural office, District Statistical office, District Rural Development Agency etc. Various facts and figures related to the research work have been collected from these offices.

I am indebted to the respondents of the rural areas who offered useful help in respect of the collection of Primary data related to our study.

I should thank my wife and children for their continuous encouragement, co-operation and tolerance required for the progress of the work.

✓ I feel that I could not have finished my research work without the blessings from my late parents and almighty god.
