

I express my deep sense of gratitude to Dr P. K. Mandal, Reader and Head of the Department of Physics, University of North Bengal for his supervision, advice and helpful suggestions throughout the present investigation. His valuable guidance, constant inspiration and constructive criticism have been of immense help at every stage of experimental works, results and discussion, development of computer programmes and finally in compilation of this dissertation.

I am grateful to Dr (Mrs) S. Paul, Reader in Physics, University of North Bengal, who stimulated me to work in the beautiful field of liquid crystals and supported with invaluable advice at different stages of this work.

Specially, I am deeply indebted to Prof. R. Paul, Department of Physics, University of North Bengal for his valuable advice, guidelines and discussion.

I wish to thank Prof. R. Dabrowski, Military University of Technology, Warsaw, Poland for supplying some of the liquid crystal samples and also for many useful suggestions.

I am indebted to the University of North Bengal for a research fellowship and financial help.

It is my privilege to express my thank to Mr S. K. Sarkar, Department of Physics, NBU for his constant help in fabricating and setting up of the experiments as well in data collection stage.

I certainly owe much to the six years of unstinting co-operation that I received from my colleagues in the Laboratory : Mr P. K. Sarkar, Dr M. K. Das, Dr (Mrs) B. Adhikari, Dr S. K. Giri, Dr N. K. Pradhan, Mrs S. Ghosh, Mr B. R. Jaishi, Mr P. D. Roy and Mrs S. Biswas. It is a pleasure to express my thanks to all the teaching and non-teaching staffs, research scholars of the of Physics Department, NBU. The staff members of USIC are gratefully acknowledged for their help in constructing and fabricating the different parts of experimental set up.

I would like to thank all the Research Scholars of the University of North Bengal for their co-operations.

I am also indebted to the Principal, Alipurduar College, Jalpaiguri, for sanctioning me the study leave to complete and submit the thesis.

Finally with great pleasure I acknowledge my indebtedness to my parents and other members of my family for their constant encouragement and unending co-operation in completion of the thesis.
