ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This work would not have been possible without a number of persons and institutions who stood by me in all circumstances and active support at all stages of this work.

I would like to express my sincere and deepest gratitude to my illustrious teacher; my venerable mentor Prof. (Dr.) Haripada Bhowmik for his invaluable technical advice and guiding me in each step throughout the entire work.

I also want to express my sincere appreciation to the Directors of Future Institute of Engineering and Management (FIEM), Kolkata for granting me a financial help for manufacturing various machinery and equipment required for my research work.

I am extremely thankful to Dr. Alope Kumar Ghosh, Principal, FIEM, for his continuous support and encouragement in improving the research activities.

A very special thank also goes to Prof. Dr. Gautam Pohit of Jadavpur University for his kind and invaluable technical support during the course of my work. I am thankful to Prof. Prokash Chandra Roy, Department of Mechanical Engineering (FIEM) for his skillful help and co-operation in all respect.

I would also like to thank Dr. Tapas Kumar Gupta, Senior Environmental Engineer, Dr. Ujjal Kumar Mukhopadhyay, Senior Scientist, Shri. Ramkrishna Saha, Scientist of West Bengal Pollution Control Board, Kolkata for their help in respect of chemical analysis of manure. I convey my sincere thanks to Shri. Nemaï Chandra Barai, Assistant Environmental Engineer of West Bengal Pollution Control Board for the valuable suggestions for designing various machinery including the digester.

I convey my sincere thanks to Messers Oriental Machinery (1919) Pvt. Ltd. and Bhattacharya and Co. Kolkata for supplying different machinery and supply of chemicals.

A number of colleagues and friends have directly or indirectly contributed to this work in various ways.

I am especially indebted to Prof. Sujit Kumar Dey, Department of Mathematics of Guru Nanak Institute of Technology, Kolkata for his help and valuable suggestions in many ways.

I am very much thankful to Prof. Kaushik Das Sharma, Department of Electrical Engineering and Prof. Arunabha Chakraborty, Department of Chemistry of FIEM for their help in the course of experimentation.

Above all, thanks are due, to all my colleagues of Siliguri Institute of Technology, Siliguri for their kind help and assistance in carrying out my work.

My heartfelt thanks also goes to my wife, Putul and my son, Partha and daughter, Eman for their loving inspiration.

At the end, I convey my heartiest regard to my mother without whose blessing this work would not have been completed.

Finally, I pay homage to my late father, the guardian of my heart.
