

Acknowledgements

I must acknowledge the support, suggestion and guidelines of too many people for completion of this thesis. First and foremost, Prof. G. N. Roy, my supervisor has been there all the way to help me carry out the entire project ; his vast intellectual input has helped me shape my ideas. All the teachers from the Dept. of Eng. NBU have been a major source of inspiration for me as I worked along. Eminent Walcott critic John Thieme from East Anglia University has taken pains to answer all the queries sent via mail from time to time; over the years this correspondence with him has added to my appreciation of Derek Walcott's plays. On few occasions, Paul Breslin has also re-directed my interpretative angle and contradicted my reading in his own way. No less do I owe my students an acknowledgement of debt as they have kept up my energy with their active interest in West Indian drama. In all these years, I've been fortunate enough to have the understanding, patience and active support of my wife and daughter. So a very special thanks to them.
