

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The researcher expresses his heart-felt gratitude to his teacher and supervisor Dr. (Mrs.) Bhaswati Bhattacharya Chakrabarti, Professor of Philosophy, North Bengal University for her constant and active guidance without which it would not have been possible for the researcher to complete this research Project.

Gratitude also goes to Dr. Ajit Kr. Baruah, M.A. (double), Ph.D., Ex-deputy Commissioner of Bhutan, son of late Raja Probhat Ch. Baruah of Gauripur Raj Estate (Assam) for his concrete suggestions, unflinching and prompt help as and when it was required.

The researcher extends his thanks to his respected teacher Dr. Raghunath Ghosh, Professor of Philosophy, North Bengal University for his encouragement and help at the time of typing this dissertation. It was he who had introduced the researcher to Shri Mridul Goswami who performed ungrudgingly the laborious task of typing this thesis carefully.

The researcher is indebted to Sri Saber Ali Sheikh, the Principal, B.N. College, Dhubri (Assam) and other colleagues (Vice-Principal – Sri D.K. Ghose, Dr. N.C. Baruah, Head of the Department of Botany, Sri Basir Ahmed, Sri Motior Rahman, Motleb Mondal, Sri Shahidul Islam, Dhruba Chakraborty etc.) of his college for their co-operation and specially Sri Manas Battacharjee who helped the researcher at the time of correction the thesis.

Thanks goes to Library Staff of his college for their concrete co-operation and active help in various ways.

Sri Asish Karan, Librarian, K.G.T. Mahavidyalaya, Bagdogra also deserves thanks for encouraging the researcher to complete the project at its earliest.

The researcher also wishes to express his gratitude to Dr. Hillol Kr. Chakrabarti, Professor of Economics, North Bengal University for his best wishes and moral support generously shown throughout years from the very initiation of this Project work.

The researcher does not want to minimize the credit of his wife Mrs. Manomati Das, M.A. by expressing his gratitude to her. During the wearisome hours of writing the dissertation her close scrutiny of the manuscript had helped a lot in typing the work with minimum possible number of mistakes. She encourages the researcher in the hour of crisis as she does in life throughout the period of these intellectual adventures.

The researcher likes to dedicate this humble Project to the fond memory of his late Parents, Charkia Das and Parbeswarj Devi (Das) who found in him a supportive element in a manner as a stick supports a blind man. He is not able to find language for expressing his debt to them. They were always a source of encouragement for the researcher's higher education, which had to be taken under numerous odds and uncongenial atmosphere.
