

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This research study would not have been completed without the cooperation of a number of academicians, scholars and institutions. I am extremely grateful to all of them.

First of all, I express my sincere and respectful gratitude to my supervisor, Prof. Kanak Kanti Bagchi, Department of Economics, University of North Bengal, whose continuous stimulating guidance and constructive criticism at every stage of my work have greatly benefited me.

I am deeply grateful to all my esteemed teachers, particularly Prof. Anil Bhumali of the Department of Economics, University of North Bengal who have been a source of inspiration for all my works and achievements.

This research involved an extensive and intensive reference work, which has been carried over by visiting different libraries. In this context, I like to express my sincere thanks to the librarians and the staff of the Central Library, University of North Bengal; Library of the State Institute of Panchayats and Rural Development, Kalyani, Nadia; Library of the National Institute of Rural Development, Hyderabad; Library of the National Institute of Public Finance and Policy, New Delhi.

I owe a deep sense of gratitude to Prof. H. K. Chakraborti (former Head of the Department of Economics, NBU) and Prof. Manas Dasgupta (former Head of the Department of Economics, NBU), who spared their precious time to plan this work and also helped me in different ways.

I am also thankful to Shri Dwijen Ghosh, former Upa-Pradhan, Gossaipur Gram Panchayat and his all staff at the office, particularly, Smt. Runa Ganguly, former Gram Panchayat member, for their kind cooperation and assistance in collecting primary and secondary data.

I would like to express my gratitude to all the teachers of Ananda Chandra College, Jalpaiguri, especially to Shri Arun Kumar Dutta and Dr. Sudip Chakraborty for their valuable comments and suggestions.

I shall be failing in my moral duties if I do not acknowledge my debt to those from whom I received generous help and cooperation during my field survey. In this context, I would like to express my gratitude to all the officers of the selected offices of GP and all the Panchayats members of my study area for providing me necessary data and information.

I am indebted to all those researchers, authors and scholars from whose work I have been benefited largely in conducting this study. I would like to thank my fellow scholars, especially Shri Satyen Sarkar, Shri Biplab Chakraborty, Dr. Sidhartha Sankar Laha and Shri Swatahsiddha Sarkar for their cooperation and suggestions. I am also grateful to my friends particularly Shri Dipesh Roy, Dr. Abdul Hadi, Shri Dibyendu Bhattacharya, Smt. Anindita Banerjee, for their selfless help and encouragement.

I wish to express my gratitude to Prof. Indira Rajaraman, Director, NIPFP, for personally providing me with her valuable publications in the area of present study.

I should be thankful to my father Shri Naresh Chandra Ghosh for his suggestions and constant inspiration and interest in my research work. I am also grateful to my mother, brothers, sisters and relatives for their moral support and encouragement.

Last, but not the least, I am highly thankful to my wife Smt. Paramita Dasgupta, Assistant Professor in Economics, Ananda Chandra College and my friend Smt. Debjani Sarkar, Samiti Education Officer, Dhupguri Block, for their sincere computer typing work, which has helped me to complete the work within the stipulated time frame. I feel inspired when I look at the sweet face of my son Triparno always dazzling with bright smiles.
